
These two components explain 89.84 % of the point variability.